Sixth Form Revision Techniques – Learning From Mistakes

"Simply telling them to work harder rarely has the desired effect…."

Learning from mistakes

Using a grid, audit your feedback from marked pieces of work to firmly fix your attention on active mistakes, slip-ups and blackouts

Learning from Mistakes

- Audit your feedback using the feedback you have been given from your classroom teachers.
- Put a series of marked pieces together so that you have feedback together
- Fix your attention firmly on the types of errors you have made so that you can adjust your practice to compensate

Learning from Mistakes

You then catagorise your mistakes into:

1. Active mistakes

The wrong process is chosen for the task

2. Slip-ups

The correct process is chosen but there is a problem with the execution

3. Black outs
